Round 1

devrim: The popularity of turkish Prime Minister in middle east, how to unmask it determine the fronts of resistance and methods. e.g.: communication, economy. How to tackle that?

Orsan: Erdogan issue can be important to talk, can you give us more insight about the topic you suggested? so we can open the discussion?

devrim: I got the idea when I was discussing about Egypt. They were positive about Erdogan, maybe the media.

MMM: Is it only media, I was at the Kurdish side of Turkey and reading their publishings What Kurdish people think about Erdogan?

Mehmet: In Abbasaga Park in Istanbul, and on-going mobilisation. In the middle of action. He thinks about the Kurdish people's opinion on Erdogan in general is against Erdogan. in my opinion Language issue there were developments but not enough..

NNN: there are independent Kurdish journals, are they giving news and opinions on this. or putting on lines?

devrim: Sirri Sureyya Onder is a kurdish Minister and activist in Gezi resistance,..

MMM: what about the Kurdish journals... printed in Bodrum, do you know it?

I'll try to find more information...

Orsan: can you give more information about turkey, what is going on? on the streets and squares?

devrim: there is a confusion or disorganisation, there are forums going on, in other cities there are also clashes

Piran: Can you give information on the forums and neighbourhood forums assemblies, etc.

Serkan+Mehmet giving update from the park... there was a conflict and now they are going to walk to ATV a mainstream media channel.. parks now becoming like a social centers, cultural production, discussions... ATV was very harsh in criticizing Gezi resistance and protesters, so we are going to walk there and continue to protest there///

MMM: is it safe in the forums? My friend lives in istanbul and wanted to visit the forums but is it safe?

devrim: Kadikoy seems safe, Besiktas too, but you can never know? Kadikoy looks like more safer// to answer Piran's question: there are rules in the forums, 2 min. limit to talk, minutes are taken, people also votes sometimes, like for a boycott...like banks

MMM: You mean the banks supporting the state?

devrim: no the system, in general..

Direndikmen: there are websites where they put the minutes and info from the forums...

Blog on the Forums in Turkey:
parklarbizim.blogstop.com

DirenDikmen: can any one from other movements give suggestions experiences to share..

dilara asked about other movements and getting experience from them.

orsan propose to go to other channels and discuss there.

orsan talks about main media, and their portrayal of the government. proposes use of new tools such as livestreaming.

piran talks about germany and how the media is sensitive about the events in turkey. also that the christian democrat party emphasizes this to help its own agenda for blocking turkey's eu bid. in the protests the turkish flag was used very much.

mmm is from chzech republic. lives in vienna. she receives her information from social media. talks about a pro AKP demonstration in vienna and it was larger than sporadic gezi demonstrations. concluded that turkish population there follows general stream turkish media. (penguins)

austrian media is against akp. emphasize the human rights violations

Carolina: we should spread the word too that mumble can be install on your mobile but one of the problems to reach mumble is not how to use the program, but rather we need to make to explain the importance of the technology and why it is important to join an online assembly. We need to explain the enjoyable part of this. why we are here. Because it is not self evident. We need to do the storytelling of online processes.

It is shared the link with the book Open Space which explains how to perform Open Space in the square, which is most effective and fe:

Zuccotti

round 1

This is where to put the notes

Can we generate a common approach to social development, and use it to create new collaborations?

At Occupy London we found that writing down how to do something helped people to understand how to collaborate with each other.

Some links:

https://occupywiki.org.uk/wiki/London/General_Assembly#How_to_Produce_a_General_Assembly

<http://epress.lib.uts.edu.au/journals/index.php/csrj/article/view/2710>

John (johnbywater2): Common process of social development, and generation of new collaborations.

maherencia : being co-operative is not an easy thing to do. If you want to make people work cooperatively if there is a specific problem like housing movement in Spain. Laws are bad - people are losing their houses. MNo housing rights platform for citizens to have their rights. The housing rights movement has become strong. Now with education for social services dependant people the movement is happening. People go to topics that they feel involved with. Look for someone who is not listened to and say I can help with a way to do it.

In order to be co-operative it's better if there is a reason. Many people may not find interesting fighting only for democracy. But if we look around we may find someone who wants to defend something that is not being paid attention to and we can help and spread this co-operative mood. For example, in my home town in Spain, which is very small, the housing rights movement didn't appear at the beginning, but a platform has been eventually created to defend public education.

Mitch is saying that hierarchies developed in Fort Myers Occupy. Now they are travelling around to put together a state-wide gathering to reach all the people and make sure hierarchies don't form.

Changes should be made in the way we go about organising.

The first occupation started happening really fast. People at the beginning did not understand enough about egalitarian participation. Maybe this next time round there will be more objection to hierarchies forming.

Micha is saying it is difficult to fight hierarchies without something to offer in place; proposal: research in the social form of the CIRCLE instead of the hierarchical triangle/pyramid Maherencia talking about hierarchies - need to propose alternatives. Collective intelligence like ants. Everyone knows what to do no boss needed.

John is saying hierarchy is sometimes useful to achieve a task or undertaking, but that it should be temporary. and not have power attached to it. A way of doing this is for people to consent to the way we do things, Direndikmen is saying we can look at Zapatistas who are using these non-hierarchical ways.

John is saying producing the relations is good by doing activities together and then circulating the agreements of how to do things. The trick of the current system is that the media fools us into thinking we are giving consent. The story is different than the story we are told. We could get out of that arrangement.

Mitch says Perhaps at a GA propose that we have a written agreement of how to do things. It was a problem here keeping things egalitarian.

John that is the problem we had in Occupy London. When we had a description of how to do things people felt more relaxed in that they were just not being taken into the dark. When there is no description then people are unclear about what we are doing.

We should develop new ways of doing things and not be ritualistic about how we do things. It is a massive project. We can do things - it just requires work Bencavanna is saying usually run assemblies by consensus but not hierarchically. Some people find that written things is easy to control them, like governments do.

John talks about how responsibilities appear and are met without need of hierarchies intervention.

John: Do you think that collaborations appear when you propose activities? Do responsibilities appear when people enjoy what is being proposed? Either you propose something or you do it on your own Dorotea says creating something more participative. My approach is more personal. make it more facilitating for others. Some people still want management over things. And this approach should be about facilitating things for other. A personal approach. It should be the system not a person in charge. In organisational work there is always something to be organise. everyone can create the thing and be part of the creation - not just the 'creative' people. It is good to have some rules about the community - not about restrictions but about openness. Have proposals from the people.

Dorotea: My Facebook is <https://www.facebook.com/dorota.mar.3>

Maherencia says about rules or not rules. We want to participate so that first thing is to participate. Once we know assembly after assembly once we know what we want then rules start to disappear. Even before 15M we went to squares every friday and speak to people. Even if I was alone in the square I knew there were others in other squares. I only wanted to give people the chance to speak. I didn't know where we were going, but we were open and encouraging people to participate.

Micha Says he also does this on a weekly basis - starting where people are standing and give them the gift of an open ear.

mitchjacobs (epec.org and Occupy Fort Myers): Using non-profits to create abundance (food/cohousing)

Mitch says What we have done is very recently taken leadership of EPEC.org non-profit. Using it to try to alleviate problems like lack of food and shelter. Lots of groups have done things like co-housing and hydroponics etc... What we have now is a legitimate non-profit. Gets tax benefits and people can do some service work through non-profit.

Question: One of the largest factors of unemployment is technology. Huge shifts in tech sectors .. Where do you guys see tech and the effect on employment.

What are ideas to combat unemployment and no food

Dorotea.. Basic Income Initiative. To give people money even if they have not job. Don't need a job to have a life. Unconditional basic income. Not enough jobs and things to do. Jobs are not the problem but people not having what they need is the problem.

Talking about how to change the structure of sharing the resources. How to share things. To provide food and shelter for everyone.

Mitch says The problem is not just tech. the issue is not having a place to live and food to eat.

round 2

Sol

round 1 :

Oliver - Global project to research the 1% - to gather information on Corporate / Gov't corruption around the world. my contact: oliver@interoccupy.net

Sol Room minutes 2100

brainstorming and talking to many people in InterOccupy about developing a research project where we have people from around the world gather data on the big corporations and also how the corps are linked to government through lobbyists, ..., behind the scenes build a data base of the 99% that is tracking and recording what corporations are doing board, govt and corps, we start to see the network which is out there I suggest until we really see this network of the 1% and the corporate elite, we won't really know how to challenge them a research and learning project; grow over time, we will have huge benefits about it littlesis (opposed the big brother) - tracks who are the board members fo the big corporations - have been doing research on these boards, and who the lobbyists are have talked to the people there, and are interested in this project as well.

they would be very interested in combining and collaborating with this information to combine and build a larger data base there is a group in Amsterdam also doing, but haven't found anywhere doing it around the world.

<http://www.tni.org/>
do you have a link

<http://littlesis.org/>
If anyone is interested in the visual docs - please email me.

based in UK - knows there are groups who follow labor, corporations idea is to start gathering information on the board, the shareholders of each corp on the page is some links another thing often overlooked is to have news articles that document corp things - it is news and then lost- so doing research to retrieve these news articles and have as part of the database - what is going on over time all this information can be used as the backbone for putting pressure on corps and gov'ts to change

Unity - this is a wonderful idea for research - so many researchers do study of occupy, of groups, marginalized communities, etc. but very little information about the elite if your name is noted as someone who is investigating about the elite to shed light where there is no light think it is great ... vital to do this research on a global level how corps and states and media are using their powers studying the boards is vital - if you are a bank, for example, you will be given chairs to executives, to large media outlets - they solve many things by phone and have cross-interests, and people - huge network of journalists, politicians bankers, businessmen.
undemocratic because not displayed publicly. if we can shed light over that , there is an enormous amount of corruption - I have not done any research on this and think your proposal is very interesting.

Oliver - very excited about this - almost what Occupy was about when it started - think the first step is to research, to learn, to share so people around the world know how to connect ncts to their towns; where are the weak links,

Sonia - a fantastic idea - is there any place we can feed into or this a unique idea

Oliver - haven't found anything global yet - almost a wikipedia idea problem there is so much information out there on a daily basis - that's why we need to break this down into small bites, locally, and then get it together on a larger scale as far as i know there is no central place right now

Sonia - tax evasion and tax havens... important locally - that would be something we could track using this mechanism as well - tracking the money and where it is used as well

Oliver - following the money trail is huge - very impt - In Canada there was a report about huge amounts of money being dropped into offshore accounts - even our gov't is...

Sonia - saw a film the other day #TheUKGold - <https://www.facebook.com/TheUkGold> - estimated amount kept in tax havens - $21 trillion - a shocking figure - there is enough money in the world that none of us has to go into austerity or

Oliver - talking to people at littlesis - I found there are templates - many ways to start finding information online

how do you do research, how do you find out unity - difficult for social scientists to get that information - documentaries, documents, tools on finding how the rich live, interact, sonia - have looked into that at occupy london - another place to start is to make contact with the people who have research and have been doing it for many years

Oliver - agrees impt to make contacts and find who has been working on these things wonders if we should make a central place like a wikipedia or other central area such a big project that if we break it down into small bites we could accomplish a lot - interested in that.

Unity - how to break this down into those little pieces - how to proceed

Oliver - haven't figured all out - it develops as it develops take a big corp like Chevron, they are working all around the world; what we do is send out a message to our contacts, research what they are doing in Peru, Ecuador, etc.

at the same time, we have already connected to people who know about Chevron, their boards, etc. - we can easily get all this information, where they are making then we pool this information, find news we can find oil spills, find their are court cases, they have been convicted; then take this information and start applying pressure to their shareholders, to media - wherever they are moving into other areas, we can say hey look at this company and how they have behaved in other places; apply pressure and break down some of the liberties they have taken. Then we have a chance to affect how this one company acts and apply that widely to banks, etc.

If there's a group in Britain who has taken on this project; same way if there is a group in Nigeria around this, it is also a way to connect to groups around the world.

Unity - hard to hear - included researchers from Africa, South America because corps are not just in Europe - I used to live in Brasil and worked in a I could see the frustration of the people - experienced their power.

UKAnon - I saw a film about exposing companies - I think there's been a lot exposures already - I do think the reason being - there is no accountability - we've allowed no accountability to exist - people know this information already - thinking about whistleblowers the responsibility lies with us - it's down to us - we have allowed this, nobody else

Oliver - agrees with not buying products but that needs to happen on a large global square; agree this information is there - it's the people who control the information who have the power the idea is to take control of this information and get it out to the public - part of this project is to create a

UK - don't want to get negative on you, but for lesser reasons, people have had their social media shut down. was just thinking if you create this data base it will

Oliver

Unity - I don't think there is need for direct action, boycotts, etc. but I believe it is also very important to change policy - to dominate corps, to put under control the leftists argument that corps are bad is not enough it's easier to believe the emperor is naked, but needs to be proved; the whistleblowers do it's fundamental to rearrange the policy toward corporations .

how can you do this how can you...
how can you not get killed have more...

want to compliment you on your initiatives - have been thinking about it for a long time, while I agree with UK about actions

Oliver - think that is important questions - I have friends who have started research groups at some of the universities, doing research whether students or faculty, putting time and effort into that - the question is the technical side of things, getting the data, pooling it, all of that can be done - if there are enough people willing to talk together.

Oliver email: oliver@interoccupy.net agree with UKAnon - we need to be smart about this what is the right approach - how supported so it can't be shut down or taken off-line - the OWS group has done a lot of work that can be helpful - to contact tech folks can see how such a big project can get underway, be maintained, perhaps be diversified so it can't be deleted or changed from one place

Unity would like to stay in touch - there is already too much knowledge on occupy - I want more whistleblowers and researchers telling us the other - need to know your enemy - the more accurate our knowledge, the better - when we are done with this conversation

Oliver - I know it's a big idea, but sometimes, we need the big ideas - I know there

UKAnon - to what Sonia said, there are others around the world doing this work - need to connect with them

Sonia - should we meet again in mumble, or contact Oliver in email unity great idea - at the end of this we have another session to talk about how we continue to meet

Oliver - we should do both - like the idea of setting up another mumble chat - there are people in the other rooms or not at the meeting who may be interested look at the plan] who else is doing what will be exciting to find out what is going on in other countries right now

Sonia - brilliant - thanks for coming up with this idea, and something we need to be doing. thanks everyone in this room

round 2

Maherencia - Identifying the common obstacles and ways to overcome them

Big corporations have taken political power from citizens. Citizens have to recover it by controlling economic power as well. That can be done by raising conscience

Vica says My feeling about is that it is better to have less places and all be together

Syntagma

round 2

it was an intense talk in a small room (2-5 people max), so we didnt manage to take notes on the way basic topics: current state of democracy doesnt represent the people anymore, so its now the task of the people to ask and answer the question

'in which society do we want to live' and to formulate a constitution really by the people, and not written by politicians;
there is a growing movement in germany for a new constitution, and on the european level the politicians constitution has failed regarding the upcoming elections in germany 2013 and EU 2014 more and more people say

'these structures/parliaments/governments don't represent us', so lets take matters in our own hands, see zapatistas

rethink constitution fresh from scratch: the classic form of democracy is in a dead end, and also the fixation on 'human rights of the individual' turns out to be questionable, as it leads to isolated individuals helpless against the big power, as it desolidarizes people;

new constitutions not based on the rights of MAN, but on dignity of LIFE itself : may ALL beings be happy

Global change based on Human Rights or Nature Rights too?
Isolated individuals or all in one human beings interconnected with ALL life on the planet?

also the question of a world constitution of all mankind starting with all areas of the world contributing their share (not by a world government)

Proposals

1. Actions in front of embassies and consulates of Turkey, Colombia, Brasil, Mexico
2. This is a text to express the repulsion for the repression

The proposal is to use it as a common base and also send to all embassies, consulates, and different institutional offices. She proposes a text which has been used previously:

Borrador texto a revisar:

Ni una muerte más, ni un arresto ilegal más, ni gas, ni acido, ni balas, no al abuso de poder, no a la criminalización. Que no queden impunes estos hechos. Exigimos investigación y que se establezca el grado de responsabilidad de los gobiernos en la represión de las protestas. Este manifiesto nace fruto de la conmoción sentida ante los hechos ocurridos en todos los países en los cuales se han manifestado masivas y pacificas protestas en los ultimos años teniendo que lamentar la muerte de tres personas, al mismo tiempo que se han llevado a cabo una serie de arrestos ilegales incluso de periodistas, fotografos, abogados y personal medico, lo que constituye una violación de los derechos fundamentales de lxs ciudadanxs. De este modo, se pretenden proteger los intereses privados de las transnacionales, de los poderes financieros, del capital y de todas las medidas neoliberales que nos están imponiendo en todo el mundo.

Exigimos que se esclarezcan las responsabilidades ante la violencia ejercida contra lxs manifestantes, muertes, heridas graves, perdida de la vista, detenciones ilegales y políticas. Es inadmisibile que los gobiernos minen la seguridad de la ciudadanía, aplicando constantemente acciones ilegítimas que atentan contra los derechos fundamentales y la Constituciones de cada país.

Según la Corte Penal Internacional, crimen contra la humanidad es "cualquier acto inhumano que cause graves sufrimientos o atente contra la salud mental o física de quien los sufre, cometido como parte de un ataque generalizado o sistemática contra una población civil" Hacemos un llamamiento a la ciudadanía para que adopte una actitud crítica ante la información que le llega de los medios de comunicación masiva que lejos de dar cabida a diferentes puntos de vista, se convierten en altavoz de los intereses empresariales.

Asumimos una actitud responsable y solidaria ante los sucesos ocurridos apoyando las movilizaciones que se están llevando a cabo a lo largo de todo los países, pues es el futuro del mundo lo que está en juego.

Exigimos que se acabe con la censura y manipulación por parte de los medios de comunicación sobre las luchas en defensa de los medios de vida, tergiversando la información con el fin de manipular a la opinión pública para que se posicione a favor

8. Las compas del colectivo las abejas informan sobre las proyecciones que se van a hacer del documental y nos piden difusión. Consensuamos la difusión y pedimos que nos envíen el calendario para ponerlo en tomalaplaza y en el facebook

This could be also a big campaigns to embassies There is a document we would like to propose

3. Taking a global photograph of resistance in our squares using a unity sentence like all struggles, one struggle, our struggle.
4. Taking in good consideration the criminalization of the movement: inform about what's happening in different countries is the first action we, people in different square, could do in order to support the people in all other country (using bambuser, rebelmouse, twitter)
5. Organizing joined actions all over the place whenever something happens

Valerio (from lecce italy): general assembly in lecce, activists from other countries, amnesty international, organizing local assemblies

<https://www.facebook.com/events/476552949096235/?fref=ts>)

Repression in turkey (differing degrees of repression) organizing an international network of lawyers, solidarity

Square tactics: infiltrated and the way people act and how to respect plurality in square actions marita: There are different way of reacting, there are lots of infiltrated who are facilitating the police in order to intervene in repression, there are different way like interpose ourselves, showing our back and carry on with our assembly or march, identify infiltrated and walk them outside the demo joel : organizing internationally around solidarity for freedom of assembly:

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Freedom_of_assembly jake: government corruption as result of economic system (capitalism)

themes and support

john sins:

joel: ushahidi projects crowdsourced maps of use of tear gas etc. <http://www.ushahidi.com>

?: twitter tags may also help in this purpose

@Obi_Live : using bambuser, and rebel mouse in order to pass information

Bambuser.com seems to be blocked in Turkey, it is working in Brazil.

Download the app to your smartphone or pc/laptop. Hashtag it either #Occupy or #OLSX and it will join the Occupy/Activist Broadcasts for people to see.

Discussion about what's happening in Brasil

Bernardo: on 20th June right wing came in but now is different. A lot of people from different background. There are lots of assemblies in the squares. media tries to manipulate. Government is listening to the movemets.

Caio: all starting from the transport fre rising. Big repression in san Paolo with rubber bullets and pepper spray. But the movement moved on. media started to get involved and this made people a bit doubting and suspicion from the left movement. But the demos were really strong. People were really different : a wide different range of people

Government tried to talk with all movements except indigenous and ecologist.

Today they are voting a law which says that if you break things you are a terrorist.

Left movement is inside. There are popular assembles all over

Government is worried about the world cup

This is a new wave: brasilian are very quite but something is moving

Jake. focus on economic issue

Orsan: focus on economic and democracy. Police repression is a global thing

Round 2

Brasil is not just Brasil. The problem is the economical neoliberalist skeme we have all over the countries. Brasil is not an alternative place: the world cuo, The belomonte situation show that brasil is well in in this project as Turkey is. Turkish government wants to change. So it's the time to see the global urgence of a change of the system and build this change all together. These movements show similarity in all countries like Spain, Turkey, Brasil,

David : important to reinforce our movement in our neighborhood. We have various moment in our global/local mouvement : sometimes is more central and visible and sometimes we decentralize and have underground action, we organize the neighborhood. We must reinforce alternative in management of our public service, housing,...Link between local and global Orsan: local resistances very important . neoliberalism and religious imposition in Turkey attacks towards rivers, lakes, mountains, mines, big dams.... privatization etc, was important to build the momentum and resistance, but because of the communication problems not many info coming from the rural to international level... there is strong police repression we don't see because of this.. we need to build connection between rural and urban resistance also to get the news out to international level....

Jake: Capitalism versus Cooperatives. Building a positive movement, pro-cooperative versus anit-caplitalistic. Creating a fund to help transition the capitalist businesses into cooperative businesses where the profits are decided by the workers. <http://pastebin.com/dDrs3w63> A fund helps the number of cooperatives:

<http://www.geo.coop/archives/InternationalTrendsInWorkerCoops.htm>

Heather: We need a citizen's guide to communication for all who cannot access our methods easily. I have been trying to amplify voices such as the Rohingya in Burma trapped in concentration camps

http://www.vice.com/en_ca/read/the-rohingya-movement-as-seen-by-a-journalist-in-burma or Gabonese trying to protest ritual killings by the people in power

<http://www.globalpost.com/dispatches/globalpost-blogs/the-grid/opgabon-anonymous-attacks-gabon-government-protest-ritual-killings>

<http://asherwolf.net/passive-spectators-and-engaged-newshapers-hacking-news-coverage-of-violence/315/> but we need an easier and more consistent method. I propose we create an internationally audited collaborative guide to all communication methods including not just social media but also ham radio, geocaching etc.

<https://github.com/GlobalSquare/guide/wiki/Guide-to-Global-Communication-and-Collaboration>

Setting up working group for this in the next days please contact Heather Marsh or @Georgiebc till we get the spaces up.

Re how we collaborate globally:

<http://georgiebc.files.wordpress.com/2013/05/bindingchaos85x11.pdf>

Zoe: digital divide is causing an information sharing from Indiosie etc. because no access there is no news coming out from those places.. western sahara, police kidnap people but we don't see news about these on social media.. we need to develop channels to reach out and link those info from those places

Piran: This year struggle made some points more clear. there is not only bankruptcy of the neoliberal program of capitalism but the bankruptcy of dominant notion of capitalist discourse since more than one century, and that is the "Development".. Brazil and Turkey are typical example of development, the capitalist development.. I think indigenous movement is right in periphery when they say we don't want development but a good life.. This notion of development has occupied the brain and line of thought of the traditional left who emphasize on development .. the nature and essential function of the state, regardless of its different models, has become more clear in this year struggle, that is controlling the people by cruel repression when they pass the red line (threatening the system) and by soft politics in other situation, and in all case for the interest of capitalist system.. it is true that Brazil made a lot of reform, but it is not answering the questions and demands of people's life. educated young generation has no future under this social relation and system.. they are the new generation is the subject of the global revolution.. using social media and communication tools. In Germany Occupy movement claimed the police and the state, - /Police attacking anti-capitalist groups. The question of revolution is a global process, a combination of living our daily life and action with non capitalist logic and direct action and communication, in this people's assemblies, horizontality and direct participation are important.

Lotta: I want to say i relate to what Piran says about assemblies: assemblies are crucial in securing inclusivity wthin protest and in making it common. also in bringing in more people, and even in collaborations between a great variety of social movements and other political factors, IT IS A MUST so that some minimum common agency is produced
I'm posting evaluation letter wrote on this theme after Blockupy

<http://acampadabcninternacional.wordpress.com/2013/06/11/blockupy-frankfurt-2013-analysis-and-evaluation-from-finns/>

Marita: continuous develloping is not possible anymore. We have to make a change and this change is global and local. let's call it glocal. A lot of altern atives are already built in Spain as i other countries. Some people say oh 15M hasnt changed anything because we didnt take the winter palace. Do we need to take it, to stay in this representative system which is part of the problem. No, we built a lot, lots of cooperation and alternatives are on the way and this is the important staff.

Jake: Building a dual power, a safe space, action camps, and infoshops. The resources to sustain the space. Encourage the community to disobey their owners and masters by not allowing them to steal their profits.

Orsans:

Jasper:

Marita: saying about the PEOPLE SQUARE started in Madrid which has people from all different countries (palestine, latin america, turkey, Sahara, and many others. WE have a radio program once a week with open mike) It's a great experience and we will keep you informed.

David: there is a contradiction in the movements (they move in the capitalist frame). I want to say it's important to the perspectives of our movement, to think about what say PiranAzad; the movement of the "educated youth". From my experience the principal contradiction of the french youth movement actually, since the 2005/2006 social movement, it's about this perspective of the movement between students and people who live in the suburbs. Maybe for no have a alliance with popular neighborhood, the risk it is to win public service but inside the capitalist state, and to manage the social part of the state. So, maybe it's is a important thing about this perspectives (see Badiou here :). And about about the local/global movement, are you against the state or not ?

Round 2:

FINAL ROUND - Pierre Am here following a group that has build up collective experience since Agora99 and made a successful presence in Tunis wsf2013 with various assemblies - and i see that the " global square " group is taking further creative initiative of putting up something creative like this one line open space (50 people and 6 rooms) -

Am involved in stimulating extension of social forums events accross the world in first a humanly way and then in a technical way

There is certainly cross breeding potential

<http://openfsm.net/projects/sfexintercom/project-home> and articulation between social forum experience which is a rich "scheduled" interaction between organized citizen (for instance there is social forum prearing in iraq in september -

<http://openfsm.net/projects/iraq-social-forum/project-home>) , and the street asemblies that come closer to the direct political social dynamicsof citizens in various countries

And i will continue to be around
